

Help us Hold their Hand

In 2014, the chemotherapy ward in Jersey will treat around 400 new cancer patients. To face a diagnosis of cancer is a frightening and upsetting experience for all involved, and FOJO aim to support them through this.

We therefore ask that you please help FOJO in their campaign to hold a patient's hand, by providing them with a patient pack, complete with the items to help them overcome many of the common issues caused by the side-effects the chemotherapy drugs have on the body:

- Thermometers to check for signs of infection
- Eye masks to help sleep and rest
- Toothbrushes and mouthwashes to prevent ulcers
- Hand cream and polish to keep skin and nails from blackening from the drugs
- Warm socks and gloves to help with sensitivity to the cold
- Hats and scarves to help deal with hair loss
- Pill packs, note packs and organisers to help remember the multitude of additional drugs needed
- Massages and relaxation vouchers to help manage stress and anxiety

We can't take away what has happened, but we can try make it a little easier through comfort, support and timely care.

Please help us Hold their Hand by coming along to one of our FOJO events, fundraising on our behalf or donating online via our website www.fojo.je
